STORY

Amidst the turmoil of war-torn Ukraine, digital artist Alex Kovych unlocked a remarkable source of inspiration that transcends the chaos of war that surrounds him. Moved by the enduring faith and spirit of his community, he embarked on a journey to depict Jesus Christ in a unique and heartfelt way. With “You Are Loved” Jesus is portrayed radiating an inner warmth that counteracts the despair of war that engulfs Alex’s country. This is a symbol of solace and strength for those who had endured the hardships of conflict.

A representation of boundless love and grace, this painting serves as a testament to the resilience of the bond between Christ’s love and the human spirit. Art has the power to shine the light of hope and inspiration, transcending the boundaries of despair and bringing a smile to those who need it most. Alex Kovych’s portrayal of Jesus reminds us that faith blooms in the unlikeliest of places, offering comfort and connection to those who seek it.

STORY

I had difficulty coming up with the title of this piece. However, when I showed this to my wife and asked what thoughts came to her mind, her immediate response was, "The journey home." To me, this fits perfectly! He will always leave the ninety-nine to look for you, no matter how far you have strayed, you cannot stray far enough from his divine love. He will find you and bring you back home.

STORY

My wife conveyed a story to me that brought this image to my mind. My wife was at a time in her life where everything seemed to be overwhelming. Weighed down by the burdens she carried, she started to try and visualize the Savior. In this visualization, she imagined him coming to her, putting a comforting arm around her, and letting her weep on his shoulder. While they did not speak, the message was clear: despite my wife's imperfections and inadequacies the savior was extending his arms of mercy to her. She wept as she felt the strength and kindness of those arms. She felt not only could she forgive herself, but she could move forward knowing that his arms of mercy were always extended to her.

In this image, I wanted to depict the love and mercy she felt and help others recognize those arms are extended to all. However, we can only feel the comfort of them when we choose to enter them.

STORY

My wife conveyed a story to me that brought this image to my mind. My wife was at a time in her life where everything seemed to be overwhelming. Weighed down by the burdens she carried, she started to try and visualize the Savior. In this visualization, she imagined him coming to her, putting a comforting arm around her, and letting her weep on his shoulder. While they did not speak, the message was clear: despite my wife's imperfections and inadequacies the savior was extending his arms of mercy to her. She wept as she felt the strength and kindness of those arms. She felt not only could she forgive herself, but she could move forward knowing that his arms of mercy were always extended to her.

In this image, I wanted to depict the love and mercy she felt and help others recognize those arms are extended to all. However, we can only feel the comfort of them when we choose to enter them.
